AUTHORS AND BOOKS. THE SPRING LITERARY CAMPAIGN-A BRILLIANT ARRAY OF ANNOUNCEMENTS-WHAT THE BOS-TON LITERATI HAVE BEEN DOING-POEMS, NOVELS, ESSAYS, AND TRANSLATIONS-THEAT-

RICAL MATTERS. Boston, Jan. 5 .- For the last quarter of a century at least, the literary interest of New-England has clustered in a great degree about one firm, in different ocalities and under different names, still the same in character and reputation. Until a few years ago this headquarters was in the little stere at the "Old Corner," pe of the oldest and quaintest buildings in America and there, under the gambrel roof, lion-hunters might, and often did, lie in wait, sure of glimpses of Longfellow and Emerson and Hawthorne and the rest, which they might cherish for all their days, and prize as adding so much to the pleasure of reading their books. It was the same after the removal to the spacious and comfortable shop on the new corner in Tremont-st.; it was the same after the old familiar style was changed two years ago; it is so now; and that it is to be the same in the future, the announcements which the house of James R. Osgood & Co. have to make of their books for 1871 will abundant ly testify. These publishers' programmes are of interest to the whole public, as mapping out the future achievement of American literature within the limit of a twelve month; and so I rejoice to have obtained the opportunity of telling you, somewhat in advance of the formal bullemain points of what our Beston authors, and other authors who are in alliance with our Boston houses, are doing and going to do. And the place of honor at the head of the catalogue belongs to that old young house whose name I have already mentioned.

The January books of this firm will be four, concerning which the public knows something already. Prof. Lowell's new volume of essays, for which the title chosen at last is "My Study Window.," Dr. Oliver Wendell Helmes's delayed volume, "Mechanism in Thought and Morals;" the novel, "Woven of Many Threads," with a seene laid partly in Rome and partly in this country, the authorship of which is concealed, but which I understand ts by a lady artist of New-York, well known in art circles in that city; and "How to Draw," a little manual fer young learners, by Mr. Charles A. Barry, the artist of that well-known picture "The Motherless," and himself an instructor in drawing in our public schools.

ng the foremost of the books for the later Winter and early Spring will be a novel by Miss Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, author of "The Gates Ajar," and "Hedged In," to be entitled "The Silent Partner." The second and concluding volume of Mr. Bayard Taylor's translation of "Faust" will be ready in May. A new edition of Miss Kate Fields's pleasant little book, "Pen Photographs of Charles Dickens," is in preparation, it being in especial demand now that the great humorist and actor whose readings it pertrayed is no mere. It will have illustraus. Mr. James Parton will have a volume, partly of essays which have had a magazine circulation, and partly of new matter, called "Topics of the Time." The Rev. James Freeman Clarke will publish his work to which he given a great deal of thought and research, "The Ten Great Religious of the World, Historically and Critisidered." A small part of the contents of the book have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, and it will be remembered that the religions of Confucius, Brahma Buddha, and Zoroaster, and so onward, are taken up in turn and treated in a manner combining great learn nd popular interest. A new volume by Mr. Edwin P. Whipple is to consist of several essays and lectures hitherte unprinted, including his lecture on "Shoddy," hav-ing for a central idea practical advice to young men entering life, and for a general title "Success and its Con-ditions." At the same time a new edition of all Mr. Whipple's books will be issued, with some rearrangement and modification of titles. Apropos of Mr. Whipple, his biography of Gov. Andrew, which ought from the subject and his own favorable opportunities to be the great work of his life, is steadily advancing toward completion, and its publication this year may be confidently looked for.

Returning to the Spring books, the house have in hand a novel by the author of "Emily Chester," and one or o other stories, who was Miss Anne Crane, and is Mrs. Seemaller, - I believe of Baltimore. Its title is "The Arches." Mr. Wilson Flagg, a naturalist who look at things not only scientifically but asthetically, and some of whese writings are well known to magazine readers, will have a volume dealing mainly with trees and flow ers, and called "The Woods and Waysides of New-England,"-a handsome illustrated octave. Still another nevel will be entitled "Something to Do," -a story by a new writer. Then the house will complete all its various editions of Dickens by the addition of a volume contain ing not only the fragment of "The Mystery of Edwin od," but a large amount of matter hitherto uncol lected by anybody, and which it requires time to gather

Coming now to books to appear further along in the year and the precise dates of which cannot be fixed, we reach some of the brightest names in the list. Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Italian Journals" will add two more vol imes, the last the world can ever have from his pen Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson is getting together some of his later essays for a new volume; in which, I dare say, the Pilgrim address delivered at New-York last month will be included. Mr. Emerson has also consented to the publication of a volume of Euglish poetry to which he editorial relation only-his own favorite pieces in our literature, which he has been gathering during his whole lifetime. To those accustomed to see Mr. Emerson on the platform, and who know how superbly he occasionally recites extracts from his readings, and how grand they all seem, this announcement promises as much as many of the purely original books Mr. J. G. Whittier is also on the catalogue as an editor, having consented to select and arrange a volume poems for children. The public will earnestly hope the task may tempt him to contribute to the collection some new pieces of his own, knowing how admir how very near the standard of his very best production is his poem, " In School Days," which he wrote for a juvenile magazine. Mr. Whittier will edit, also, during the year "The Journal of John Woolman," a Quaker minister of Mount Holly, New Jersey, one of the earliest and most devoted of the Abolitionists, whose memoir has been out of print these thirty years, but still possesses an element of freshness and living interest. Mr. William Cullen Bryant at last permits the announcement of his translation of the Odyssey of Homer-a mighty work, equal in magnitude and difficulty to his rendering of the Iliad, but which is already nearly half completed. It will be issued in the same etyle with the other work. Mrs. H. B. Stowe wil make a book of "Oldtewn Fireside Stories," of the half dozen already contributed to the Atlantic and some others, to be issued with illustrations worthy its merits as a study of the New-England life of several generations ago. Mr. John Hay will publish his record of Spanish experiences and observations when the papers bave appeared in magazine numbers. And finally Mr. Charles Reade's new novel, "A Terrible Temptation," will of course be published in book form as soon as its course as a serial is run, and will probably reach as large sale as any single publication of the coming season.

 Messrs. Lee & Shepard have also a very promising list of books in preparation. They will issue the second and third volumes of the claborate standard edition of the works of the Hon. Charles Sumner, continuing the addresses and public letters in chronological order as they were begun. The first volume of the series, which has been accessible to subscribers only, will be published for the general trade during 1871. Another work of interest to the publicist and student of political problems will be the Hon. William Whiting's "War Powers under the Con-stitution of the United States." Mr. Whiting, it will be remembered, was Solicitor of the War Department during the Rebellion, and at that time published a siender pamphlet under this title, a germ which has now developed into an octave of 750 pages. It will deal exhaustively with the whole subject of military arrests, recon struction, and military governments from the legal point of view, illustrated or notes on the history of the Executive and Legislative Departments during our civil war, and a collection of cases decided in the national course. A philosophico-nectical book, which will attract considerable ascention beside the profession and out of it, will be Prof. M. R. Storer's tradise on "The Causation and Treatment of Refl-x Insunity in Women." Mr. Frank, F. Heard of the Boston bar has prepared a volume which he calls "Curiosities of Law Reporters," full of the oddest shings in the records of courts in this recentry and is England. The subscription trade only will have a chance at an octave volume on "Art, its Laws and the Reasons for them," by Summet P. Long, designed to some extent as an educational work. Two religious books, the Rev. George C. Haldwin's twelve lectures on The Model Prayer," otherwise known as the Lord's Prayer, and Prof. Townsend's "The l'ivine Man," have already been announced; and Messre, J. & S. will also issue a "New Testament Manual," a c. Vonological arrangement of the Goopel narratives, by the Rev. Mr. Howes, who has lately sublished an elaborate work giving a "Synchronology" of general history. In their juile specialties they will have a new series of "Young Americans Abond," by "Giver Optic," who has Just re-turned from a material-rathering trip in Europe; "The Young Dodge Clab," by the prolific Prof. James De Stille. this recent bender a new badget of Dalogues in Mr.

"The Pleasant Cove Stories," by the Rev. Elijah Kellogg, who has achieved a new reputation in this department of literature, commensurate with that wen by his well-remembered "Spartacus" and Regulus" declarations; and a pair of "Children's Albums," on a fer Sanday and one for week days, made up of a great number of English pictures. The firm also announce a single novel, by a new hand, with the rather striking title of " Married for Both Worlds." The next succeeding Marie Sophie Schwartz books will be "Guilt and Innocence" and "The Wife of a Conceited Man." Concerning the books of Messrs. Roberts Brothers, I have already spoken to you. They are running through the press the final volume of "The Earthly Paradise" for issue this month, and have decided to publish also a cheap edition of the poem in three volumes, so that the remarkable and unique work may be in the hands of the poor or economical thousands to whom the present two styles are inaccessible on account of their price

Gossip concerning the February numbers of the maga-zines is in order. Mr. Fields's "Whispering Gallery" contribution to the Atlantic will be the first of several papers on Hawthorne, detailing facts concerning the boyhood and early manhood of the great romancer which have never yet been in print. By the way, speaking of Hawthorne, have you observed the report from Portland that somebody there or near there had discovered an old juvenile manuscript diary of his, beginning about the year 1816 !- a treasure-trove indeed for his biographer, if the world were not forbidden to hope for the coming of such a personage. Mr. T. B. Aldrich will have in the February number a tale, "The Friend of My Youth." Mr. William L. Stone will contribute an authentic ac-count of the extraordinary achievements of Mr. Noah Stone, the father of Mr. Stone of The New-York Journal of Commerce, in astrology,-actually predicting by the aid of the stars, in the modern and prosaic times of a generation ago, a whole series of events which actually came to pass. Dr. Samuel A. Greene, a well-known anti quarian student of this city, will write about Franklin's Autobiography, correcting some errors into which recent writers on the subject have fallen. Mr. W. M. Baker, the author of 'The New Timothy," and some other works dealing with life and manners in rough sections of the South-West, will have the first of several stories in the same field, called "The Red Hand." Poems may be expected from Mrs. Thaxter, who makes a ballad of a real incident occurring this Summer near her bleak home or the Isle of Shoals, and from Mr. W. D. O'Connor of Wash-

A feature of succeeding numbers of the Atlantic, begin ning with that for March, will be a series of papers by Clarence King, an army officer who has been exploring, in the service of the Government, the higher mountains of California. Students and theorizers in geology will be interested to learn that he has discovered there a real living, moving glacier,-a fact of no little importance to science.

THEATRICAL MATTERS. Mr. Fechter has aunounced the plans for his last week at the Globe, which cover only repetitions of performances already familiar. Mr. Chency has also issued his bulle tin for the season to follow,-with himself as a "general manager," Mr. W. R. Floyd, whose name needs no introduction to the New-York public, as stage manager, Mr. Wallack and Mrs. Chanfrau restored to the company, and Mrs Scott Siddons as the first star, with Shakes pearean plays to lead of with. It is well understood that this arrangement is only temporary, to fill the needs of the emergency, and there are all sorts of rumors as to what will follow as a more permanent organization. Prominent among these, and with many claims to credence, is the report that Mr. R. M. Field, now of the Boston Museum, will assume thereins of management at th Globe in the Spring. Mr. Field having bad his first training as a journalist, has been for five years past manager of the Museum, and has approved himself one of the most capable men in similar positions in the United States, collecting and keeping together an admirable company, doing good things without making a fuss about them, producing more new English and French plays than any other manager in America, washing the dirty linen of the establishment at home-if there is any to wash-and withal keeping such a balance on the profit side of the books as to satisfy the proprietor. He is a firm, cool, serene gentleman, and sure if he takes command of the Globe Theater to restore the discipline which has so long been lacking there, and tolerate no insurrections below, no interference from above or from without. A better end to the troubles there could hardly be suggested by the art-loving and cultivated public than that which his appointment would imply.

The Museum brings out "Guy Mannering" to-night as a show-piece, to run several weeks. Mr. Montgomery closes his engagement at the Boston Theater this week, and a German Opera troupe will take the boards.

FRIDAY, Jan. 6-P. M. The stock market, opening steady, shortly afterward developed a lower range of prices, though in the afternoon a slight improvement was noted. The range of quotations has been within a narrow radius, and the market devoid of special interest. The chief attraction was the St. Paul shares, which made the most marked decline, after which the larger dealings were in Rock Island, North-West Common and Preferred, Union Pacific, Ohio and Mississippi, and Western Union Telegraph. In the afternoon there was a fair business recorded in the Vanderbit stocks, speculation in the remainder of the list being tame. There was a well distrib-uted business in investment stocks, with sales of Fore Wayne at 923; Illinois Central, 1393; Alton and Terre Haute, 284 #294; and Dubuque and Sioux City, 90. In the Hannibal and St. Joseph shares, Common declined from 941 to 94, sales of Preferred being reported at 106. In miscellaneous shares, the features were Pacific Mail and Western Union, Mariposa Preferred selling at 91710. In Express shares American was firm at 422 243c.
